

September 29, 2003

A Life Hangs in Balance - Doctors Seek Cause of Mysterious Collapse

One of The Sanger Clinic's pediatric cardiology patients, Adam Quilty, was recently featured in a three-part human interest story in The Charlotte Observer. Adam was a 17 year-old student at Vance High School when he collapsed while playing in a lacrosse game. Scott Fowler, Sports Columnist for The Charlotte Observer, tells Adam's amazing story of diagnosis, treatment and recovery. The article, which recently won a national sportswriting award can be accessed by clicking the link below:

http://www.charlotte.com/mld/charlotte/sports/special_packages/17_seconds/

Through compassionate patient care, innovative medical procedures and a strong sense of community, the Sanger Clinic has built a reputation of trust and stability in the Carolinas. Founded in 1946 by Paul W. Sanger MD, the Sanger Clinic has grown to include an impressive staff of adult and pediatric cardiologists, and cardiac, thoracic and vascular surgeons. With 11 locations in both North and South Carolina, the Sanger Clinic offers convenient access to heart care. For more information, visit our website at www.sangerclinic.com